Introduction

Whether it's your putting, short game, or full swing that needs some fine tuning, our fully trained PGA of Canada Instructors can work with you to give you the confidence you're looking for to improve your game.

If you are looking to learn how players think on the course, an on-course playing lesson may be a great option. Playing lessons have advantages, such as golf course management skills, better club selection options, trouble and recovery shots, and pressure and scoring situations.

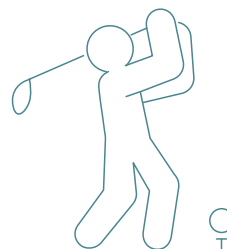

Members, non-members, and groups are welcome to book lessons with any of our PGA of Canada Golf Professionals. Please contact your golf professional directly to book lesson times.

We offer...

- Brand new teeline mat system, short game and practice bunkert area.
- Daily Range Pass (access to all practice facilities) for $20.
- Annual Range Pass $525.
- We can custom fit for Titleist, Ping, TaylorMade and Callaway at no charge.

Corporate Lessons

Golf has become a very important tool for many companies as they look to either build their team, improve their bottom line, use it as a networking opportunity, or host a client event.

Clinics involve our highly skilled golf professionals instructing on the key parts of the full swing and/or short game. The number of professionals instructing the clinic will depend on your group size, but we will ensure that each person gets some-thing specific to help their game.

Companies and groups can choose from our prepackaged clinic programs, or can email/ phone Dale Tomlinson, Head Golf Professional for a quote for your own personally designed program.

Junior Lessons

If your junior would like an introduction to the game, has had lessons before, or would like to fine tune their game, our golf professionals are more than happy to "grow the game" with junior instructional lessons.
